

Essay

By, Tessa Davis

Tessa Davis

2-2-01

Comp. Essay
S.S

King George III and George Washington were both important people in American History. They were alike in some ways but very different in others.

These two men both had reddish brown hair and light blue eyes. They were both named George, and stood over 6ft. tall. They were both horsemen, and was honesty and popular.

George Washington married a widow, had two kids and lived in Virginia. He grew tobacco and was the first president of the United States of America.

King George III married a German Princess and was parents of fifteen children. He lived in London and called him, "Farmer George". He ruled 13 colonies and was the last King of America.

These George's has something alike and something different about them. George Washington and King George III are very important.